this book has two objectives to show that the research does not support the belief that asians in the united states are well adjusted and therefore do not need mental health services and to show the effects of cultural differences between americans and asians in the recognition and treatment of mental health problems the book has eight chapters which discuss the following subjects why asian americans should be studied patterns of disturbance and use of mental health services cultural issues in recognizing symptoms and identifying disturbed persons the asian american family personality sex role conflicts and ethnic identity improving intervention and treatment and future directions for asian american mental health in each chapter the author reviews and criticizes the research to date these subjects the author s conclusions include 1 the rate of mental disorders among asian americans has been underestimated 2 the expression of symptoms is influenced by culture and 3 the asian american family has both positive and negative effects on mental health while the author only briefly mentions the special problems of asian american refugees the mental health issues discussed in the book are applicable to all asian american immigrants including refugees in this important book nicholas hartlep and daniel scott s detailed analyses on both visual and historical representations of asian americans in textbooks and teacher manuals used in our elementary and secondary schools poignantly tell us that generations of children are growing up being fed this single story about asian americans as hartlep and scott write asian americans have once again been constructed as the good minority that can succeed on their own and be used as a political instrument to shame the blacks for their underachievement and their fight for equality over and over again the media has been telling a single story about asian americans to the public for the past fifty years the consequence of this fabricated story is that it discourages others even asian americans themselves from believing in the validity of their struggles linshi 2014 p 1
