although restorative justice is probably one of the most talked about topics in contemporary criminology little has been written about how community involvement in restorative justice translates into practice while advocates have presented the community as an essential pillar of restorative justice the rationale for why and how this is the case remains underdeveloped and largely unchallenged this book offers an empirical and theoretical explanation of what community involvement means and what work it does in restorative justice drawing on an empirical case study and the wider sociological literature the role of community in restorative justice examines the involvement of the community in one selected practice of restorative justice and also considers the implications of the english and welsh experience for development of a more coherent framework for operationalizing community involvement in restorative justice practices it is argued that restorative justice programmes need to start from a more concrete and up to date notion of community while operationalizing community involvement they need to acknowledge all at once the importance of place the importance of family links friendship and other social ties and the importance of similar social traits and identities this book is essential reading for students researchers and academics in the fields of criminology criminal justice sociology community studies policy studies social policy and socio legal studies this book will also be valuable reading for a variety of practitioners and policymakers particularly working with restorative justice and youth justice the concepts investigated in this study stemmed from two things first a pilot study where we found that the static electricity simulator results coupled with the cpu pedagogical structure provided facilitated the articulation and sharing of ideas in a small group of three students from this we hypothesized that the simulator tools played a role in knowledge construction and we wanted to find out more about what role it played second the past ten years of research in mathematics and science education has led to the recognition of the importance of the instructional setting collaboration and cognitive tools in the construction of knowledge a tradition has emerged where researchers have begun to look at the individual s knowledge construction through a different lens than the knowledge that emerges through group interactions from this type of research we can learn about the knowledge construction of the individual and the knowledge construction of the group we can understand how the interactions within the group have influenced the knowledge development of the individual however we cannot learn about how the individual influences the group parameters repeated interactions between individuals and tools can fundamentally change the social and material setting we need to look at how the social and material setting changes as a result of the individuals interaction with it and how this changing social setting influences the conceptual development of the individual investigating interdependent interaction between the individual and the social and material setting is the foundation for this work i believe that understanding learning requires more than understanding the individual and understanding the social environment of which he was a part understanding learning means understanding how the individual changes the social and material setting and how these changes influence the individual this dissertation is devoted to understanding individuals learning the factors that influenced it and further understanding how these factors were determined by the knowledge evolution of the individual
